

Self-Employed Instrumental Teachers: Vocals, Piano (2 positions available)

Required for June 2022

£25 per hour

Fred Longworth High School are committed to providing the very best musical education possible for every student. We are passionate about music and believe that music is such an important part of every child's life, learning and development. We believe that Music forms a crucial part of education for young people and that it helps children to achieve in all aspects of their lives.

Our students study music at key stage three for one hour per week and our lessons are focused on practical music making. Music is a popular option at Key Stage four where we offer GCSE Music, RSL Music Practitioners and BTEC Music. The curriculum is built around practical learning and builds upon our students own musical interests using the music and instruments that they enjoy and identify with. We closely follow the ethos and principles of Musical Futures in designing our curriculum and our staff are involved in delivering training internationally. Many of our students are involved in extra-curricular clubs which include Brass Band, Class Brass, Choir, Rock School and Jam Club. Our department Twitter account and Instagram account gives a good indication of our work inside and outside of the classroom @FLHSMusicDept fredlongworthmusic

Our facilities are excellent and consist of 4 music classrooms including computer suites, a professional music studio and 2 practice rooms.

We are looking for committed musicians who are interested in working on a self-employed basis as instrumental teachers in our thriving department. We want people who can take innovative approaches to learning and are keen to engage a wide range of students in learning instruments. In addition, we are potentially looking for some small group support within curriculum lessons to provide some first access experiences for our students.

All of our instrumental teachers are expected to promote a culture of vigilance with regard to safeguarding the welfare of the young people for whom they come into contact with. Instrumental teachers would need to provide an enhanced DBS disclosure, which can be arranged through the school.

If you are interested in working alongside us, interviews will take place in the week commencing 23rd May; please submit a CV and letter of application outlining your suitability for the post by Wednesday, 18th May. We welcome informal visits and chats. Please contact Tracey Ball via the following contact numbers 01942 881452/883796 or via email: ballt@flhs.wigan.sch.uk for more details.
